A Formidable Presence in Intellectual Property

Debevoise & Plimpton has one of the nation's leading Intellectual Property practices.

Our team has developed a stellar reputation for handling the most difficult cutting-edge cases, transactions and counseling projects in trademark, copyright, advertising, right of publicity, privacy, technology, design and utility patents, and related matters. We not only litigate leading cases around the country, but we also are thought leaders, teaching and writing on intellectual property law, advocating for regulatory and legislative improvements in the law, and promoting efficient alternative dispute resolution mechanisms for intellectual property cases.

Our teams help clients win: achieving courtroom victories and efficient, business-friendly solutions to novel legal challenges across a wide range of industries, including beverage and food, broadcast television, consumer products, cosmetics, fashion, financial services, Internet, motion pictures, pharmaceuticals, professional sports, publishing, recorded music, retail, technology, and telecommunications.

Clients benefit from lean, highly experienced and expert teams that offer thorough analysis of the law, refined to its most practical application.

Finding the right business answer is always the priority.

Trademark & Unfair Competition

“The firm that I want as my top-notch litigation counsel and partner in a trademark infringement suit”

Our team, led by David H. Bernstein and Megan Bannigan, protects the world’s highest-profile brands in complex trademark disputes around the globe.

We have extensive experience litigating the most difficult trademark, trade dress, unfair competition, and anti-counterfeiting cases, including both obtaining and defending against temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions, and at trials that often are conducted in expedited time frames. We examine all available arguments and defenses, including invalidity of marks, likelihood of confusion and/or dilution, fair use, functionality, crowded fields, First Amendment, fraud, and the equitable defenses of laches, unclean hands, and estoppel. We also have unique knowledge related to the design, supervision and critique of consumer perception surveys, which often play a vital role in trademark, trade dress and advertising cases, having been involved in the design or critique of hundreds of surveys conducted by dozens of the nation’s leading survey experts. We represent clients in state and federal courts - up to the Supreme Courts - and before the Patent and Trademark Office, Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, International Trade Commission, and domestic and international arbitral tribunals.

Our team prides itself on its deep knowledge of our clients’ industries and businesses. When it suits the client’s objectives, we work to find creative solutions well before trial. But we are trial lawyers first, always ready to win in court.

In addition to our litigation experience, we regularly advise clients in the clearance of rights and the selection, development, acquisition, registration, and protection of trademarks, trade dress, and trade names.

In a case that was vigorously tried both in the court of law and at the court of public opinion, we successfully defended Yves Saint Laurent's right to produce red shoes by defeating a motion for a preliminary injunction filed by Christian Louboutin, which held a U.S. trademark registration for use of a red sole on women's high-heeled shoes. We successfully defended that victory on appeal, winning a complete dismissal from the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, and then prevailed in a subsequent proceeding in the Trademark Office where we obtained a critical limitation to the Louboutin trademark registration.

We won a complete defense verdict after trial in this challenge brought by MZ Wallace to the quilted synthetic pattern used by our client, Oliver Thomas, for its new line of handbags and accessories.

In a major precedential decision clarifying the standard used to evaluate whether a trademark is generic, we represented Snyder's-Lance before the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit in obtaining reversal of the TTAB's decision that PRETZEL CRISPS is a generic term.

Following a five-day trial, Debevoise won a decisive verdict for Kate Spade & Co. which ensured its right to use the trademark Kate Spade Saturday despite a challenge from Saturdays Surf, a popular clothing line that claimed the exclusive right to use SATURDAY in connection with clothing.

In a series of litigations over a decade that included a multiday evidentiary hearing focused on the complexities of Soviet and Russian law, dismissals by two different district judges, two appeals to the Second Circuit, and a petition for certiorari to the Supreme Court, Debevoise achieved a complete victory for our client Pernod Ricard in obtaining dismissal of ownership claims filed by a Russian Federation entity related to the Stolichnaya trademark. While a third appeal was pending, Debevoise negotiated a highly-favorable resolution that permanently removed our client from any future claims related to this ongoing dispute.

In a highly publicized case addressing the protection of mobile app icons, we represented PayPal in a challenge to Pandora's confusingly similar stylized "P" app icon. After an early procedural victory, we reached a very favorable confidential settlement for PayPal.

We negotiated a highly successful global resolution for our client, WeWork, in a multi-jurisdictional trademark dispute against a global coworking rival which launched in the U.S. market under the confusingly similar UrWork name. On the eve of a preliminary injunction hearing, we secured a highly favorable, confidential settlement agreement on behalf of our client. UrWork has since announced that it is changing its name globally to UCommune.

David Bernstein is a "rockstar," "just incredible in terms of strategic planning" and "indisputably one of the very best trademark lawyers in the country."

Copyright

“Debevoise has built an outstanding reputation as a heavyweight in copyright litigation.”

Our copyright practice, led by Jeffrey Cunard, spans our litigation (including enforcement and defense), licensing, corporate and counseling practices. We offer full-service protection for clients that are seeking to build, enhance, and defend the value of their copyright assets, as well as clients that use copyrighted materials. Our lawyers work both on enforcing copyrights and on cutting-edge litigation at the intersection of copyrights and technology. We have played a significant role in seminal copyright cases, including before the United States Supreme Court, and regularly advise clients on a wide range of matters, including the acquisition and licensing of copyrighted materials, publishing and development agreements, technological and product developments and issues of fair use and the application of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act.

We cover the full spectrum of copyright matters in the content development, retail, technology and not-for-profit sectors, including motion pictures, television, visual art, music, literature, computer software, packaging and fashion design.

We represented NBC Universal, CBS Broadcasting and Disney/ABC in precedent-setting copyright litigation involving the public performance right, in successfully challenging Aereo's unauthorized streaming of broadcast television programs over the internet using thumbnail-sized antennas. We helped secure an ultimate victory for our clients at the U.S. Supreme Court, which held that Aereo's service was infringing. The New York Times dubbed the case one that "will shape TV's future."

We represented five major U.S. book publishers in bringing a copyright infringement action challenging Google's mass digitization of books from U.S. libraries into its Google Library Project, making them searchable and offering users "snippets" of the books. We negotiated a widely-publicized settlement agreement that would have established new business models among publishers, authors and Google. Although that landmark class action settlement agreement ultimately was not approved by the court, we subsequently negotiated a successful settlement for our clients.

We were retained by Costco Wholesale to represent it before the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in long-running copyright litigation asserting that it was infringing Swiss watchmaker Omega SA's copyright in a tiny globe design engraving on the back of the watches that Costco had bought on the "gray market" and was selling in the U.S. We were successful in the appellate court affirming the district court's judgment for Costco, which included a precedent setting concurrence that Omega had engaged in copyright misuse.

Jeffrey Cunard is 'very knowledgeable'

Advertising & Healthcare

“Renowned for its litigation capabilities and displays significant experience in the handling of advertising disputes.”

Led by David Bernstein, Jeremy Feigelson, Michael Schaper, and Paul Rubin, our team of advertising lawyers have decades of experience in handling every part of advertising campaigns. From designing substantiation studies to vetting advertising copy to defending ads before regulators to litigating false advertising disputes in court and before the FTC, NAD and television networks, our team has deep familiarity with every stage of an advertising campaign and advertising challenges.

Leveraging our keen understanding of the FDA regulatory landscape, we also have a long history representing drug, cosmetic, food, dietary supplement and device companies, among others, in a wide range of commercial disputes and government investigations, state AG investigations, Lanham Act false advertising lawsuits, class-action lawsuits, and disputes before the FTC and NAD.

We pride ourselves on a practical, business-oriented approach to advice, and often work with scientists in a wide variety of fields to substantiate clients' advertising claims and to expose the weaknesses in competitors' claims. Thanks to this experience, we have an enviable record of success. Debevoise lawyers have won and defended motions for preliminary injunctions, efficiently resolved class action advertising cases, defended against regulatory investigations in the advertising arena, and prevailed in more than 100 matters at the NAD. Our team is frequently asked to speak at the nation's leading conferences, and we have authored the leading treatise in advertising law in the United States.

Paul Rubin is a LMG Life Sciences: “Life Sciences Star”

L'ORÉAL

We successfully represented L'Oréal USA, Inc. in multiple class actions, as well as FTC and FDA investigations, related to claims that anti-aging skin care products from the company's Lancôme and L'Oréal Paris product brands do not perform as advertised.

AMERICAN EXPRESS

For more than a quarter century, we have represented American Express in advertising disputes against its major competitors (including Visa, MasterCard and Discover) and against banks and other parties that issue competing credit cards. Both in court and at the NAD, we have successfully challenged claims that disparaged the acceptance of the American Express card, have forced the abandonment of claims that exaggerated the benefits of other cards, and have defended claims touting the superiority of the services provided by American Express.

We represented Unilever in a high profile false advertising challenge to the name and labeling of Just Mayo sandwich spread. Unilever argued that the name and label, which showed an image of an egg, were false because the product contained no eggs and was therefore not mayonnaise. Ultimately, the FDA agreed to take the lead on the challenge.

In a precedent-setting advertising dispute that created new law on the substantiation of advertising claims, Debevoise won a preliminary injunction against Mylanta NightTime on the ground that the name deceptively implies that the product was specially designed for nighttime heartburn and would prevent heartburn all night long. Debevoise successfully defended that injunction on appeal before the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, and beat back a request for rehearing en banc and for certiorari.

We negotiated a successful settlement on behalf of Foundation Medicine Inc., a leading cancer diagnostic company, in critical false advertising litigation against Guardian Health, a competitor in the space. Following disqualification of its initial counsel, Foundation Medicine invited many of the nation's leading advertising law firms to pitch to take over the matter and ultimately selected Debevoise to handle this important project.

We represented Ironwood Pharmaceuticals in an NAD case that challenged Synergy Pharmaceutical's deceptive advertising for its Trulance Chronic Idiopathic Constipation drug, and that falsely disparaged Ironwood's competing, marketing leading product Linzess. The case raised interesting questions about NAD's concurrent jurisdiction over FDA matters. Following Synergy's refusal to respect the NAD's jurisdiction, the matter was referred to the FTC for enforcement proceedings.

Although obtaining shape and color trademark registrations can be challenging, we were successful in obtaining approval from the U.S Patent and Trademark Office for GSK's trademark applications consisting of the color purple applied to the surface of GSK's ADVAIR DISKUS inhaler products, used for the treatment of asthma and other respiratory ailments. In 2016, two companies that intend to enter the market with generic equivalents of ADVAIR filed oppositions to GSK's application. We resolved the challenges early in the process, and the oppositions were withdrawn. We also stand ready to challenge in court any generic equivalent of ADVAIR that improperly infringes on the distinctive color and shape of GSK's ADVAIR inhalers.

Entertainment, Media & Sports

Our lawyers have broad knowledge and experience on a range of issues affecting the entertainment and media industries, covering both litigation and transactional matters. We regularly provide advice and aggressively and effectively litigate a variety of issues impacting the industry, such as the right of publicity, defamation, First Amendment and the licensing, sale, distribution and transfer of rights, as well as other business or contractual disputes. We also counsel our corporate clients and litigate in the increasingly busy area of employment-related defamation matters.

Our team, led by Jeremy Feigelson, Michael Schaper, and David Bernstein prides itself on truly understanding the business of entertainment and our creative, solution-oriented and responsive approach to each matter.

We won a major victory at the summary judgment stage for the National Football League in a case brought by retired NFL players seeking to enjoin and be compensated for the NFL's continued use of game action footage taken during their playing careers. We also successfully settled a class action involving the same claims. Summary judgement and approval of the settlement were both affirmed by the Eighth Circuit.

TimeWarner

We obtained summary judgment dismissing a libel suit brought by Donald J. Trump against our clients, Time Warner Book Group and New York Times editor Timothy L. O'Brien, involving the book TrumpNation: The Art of Being The Donald.

In the first New York case to address right of publicity claims within video games, we secured dismissal of two cases brought by Lindsay Lohan and another celebrity against Take-Two Interactive Software concerning the alleged use of their likenesses in the Grand Theft Auto video game.

Debevoise successfully represented the NHL and the Toronto Maple Leafs in connection with a dispute with Snoop Dogg regarding his applications for the trademark "Leafs By Snoop" and an accompanying design mark resembling the Maple Leafs' design mark. Debevoise was retained on the heels of widespread press coverage regarding the nascent dispute. After three years of discussions, during which we repeatedly focused on the strength of the Maple Leafs' marks, the risk of confusion, and the practical reality of NHL's and Snoop Dogg's interest in continuing to work together, Snoop Dogg finally agreed to abandon the LEAFS BY SNOOP applications, in favor of proceeding simply under the trademark LBS. As a result, the NHL's oppositions to Snoop Dogg's various trademark applications were sustained with prejudice.

Jeremy Feigelson "is a master of IP matters" according to The World Trademark Review 1000

Domain Name Disputes

We have earned a reputation for being both “dedicated and experienced” and “an excellent IP firm packed with top-notch litigators.”

From the start of the commercial Internet, Debevoise has been a key advisor to clients worldwide on the development of their Internet strategy. From the protection of content and brands online, to defense against online counterfeiting, to the cutting-edge issues created by new gTLDs, Debevoise lawyers are at the forefront of advising clients on practical strategies for IP protection in the digital age.

When it comes to domain names, our experience with the Uniform Domain Name Dispute Resolution Policy is unmatched. Debevoise lawyers are intimately familiar with the UDRP because they consulted with WIPO on the development of the UDRP, and David Bernstein is one of the world’s leading UDRP panelists, having written hundreds of decisions that have shaped key aspects of domain name law. Drawing on this experience, the Group has recovered hundreds of cybersquatted domain names for its clients.

“You wouldn’t want to spill any blood in the water with these guys around. They are tough, efficient and highly effective trial lawyers.”

The Law Society

We represented Kibar, a major Turkish conglomerate, and The Law Society of the United Kingdom in litigations in U.S. courts filed in an effort to block those brand owners from implementing their UDRP victories. In both cases, we quickly resolved the litigations and were successful in helping those clients recapture their eponymous domain names.

We represented the National Hockey League in a UDRP complaint against a cybersquatter that had posted a pornographic website at a domain name incorporating the Philadelphia Flyers trademark.

Debevoise assisted the Educational Broadcasting Corporation in research, drafting, and filing of Uniform Domain Name Dispute Resolution proceedings against cybersquatters who control domain names incorporating trademarks owned by WNET.

We successfully represented UNTUCKit in a Nominet proceeding and secured the domain name untuckit.uk.co from a cybersquatter attempting to extort UNTUCKit.

“The Preeminent” David Bernstein has “a larger-than-life reputation in this profession and he’s the real deal. He has an unmatched knowledge base, but also brings a ton of energy to his practice.”

Trade Secrets & Restrictive Covenants

Our team, led by Jyotin Hamid, has extensive experience on both sides of disputes involving trade secrets, executive restrictive covenant agreements, and other legal issues that arise when companies hire top executive talent from the competition. We have been successful in both obtaining and defeating motions for temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions, as well as motions for expedited discovery aimed at quickly preventing the movement of key teams and business leaders and preserving confidential business information.

We also provide strategic advice to help clients in a broad range of industries protect their human capital, business relationships, confidential information and trade secrets. Our team works closely with the Employee Benefits & Executive Compensation Group to navigate group hires and to draft confidentiality, non-compete, non-solicit and employment agreements, and related employer policies aimed at securing confidential and proprietary information.

Clients believe one would be “hard pressed to find a more hard-working, responsive team than Debevoise”

—Chambers USA

THE CARLYLE GROUP

On behalf of Carlyle, we successfully defeated motions for a temporary restraining order and for a preliminary injunction, and we ultimately obtained dismissal of the complaint, in a case alleging that Carlyle launched a portfolio company based on a business plan “stolen” in violation of a non-disclosure agreement.

Following a three-day trial, we obtained an injunction on behalf of Misys International against individuals who sold a proprietary software business to Misys and later launched a competing enterprise based on a substantially similar software.

smiths medical

On behalf of Smiths Medical, we obtained a temporary restraining order preventing Global Head of Operations from misusing trade secrets and becoming employed by a competitor.

Jyotin Hamid is “very reflective and responsive, a good listener, an excellent writer and good at interpreting what [clients] are trying to accomplish.”

Intellectual Property Transactions

“What we really like about Debevoise is that all the lawyers tend to be very commercial. They drive the corporate transaction by shaping the question and the dialogue.”

Our team, led by Jeffrey Cunard and Henry Lebowitz, represents domestic and international clients who acquire and sell businesses that own intellectual property, including patents, copyrights, trademarks and trade secrets, and that license, sell, purchase, and develop intellectual property.

Our practice encompasses intellectual property aspects of mergers, acquisitions, divestitures, initial public offerings, bankruptcy-related reorganizations, and financings. We advise on intellectual property licenses, intellectual property and information technology-agreements, development, publishing, distribution and service agreements, and joint venture arrangements in which intellectual property is the key asset. In addition to our transactional work, we regularly advise clients in the clearance of rights and the selection, development, acquisition, registration and protection of trademarks, trade dress, and trade names.

Reflective of our collaborative approach, we work regularly with our mergers and acquisitions, finance, capital markets, employee benefits, tax, litigation, and bankruptcy practices to craft practical, commercially savvy and cost-effective solutions.

We represented Sarah Thomas, the founder of the Colorado start-up company Healthyish Foods LLC, in a trademark dispute against mass media empire Condé Nast. Despite Ms. Thomas' federal trademark registration for HEALTHYISH, Condé Nast – through its Bon Appétit brand – launched its own Healthyish website, directly competing with Ms. Thomas's brand. After threat of litigation from Debevoise, the parties were able to negotiate a lucrative and innovative licensing deal for Ms. Thomas, which allows both brands to coexist, continue to grow and even partner together to give Ms. Thomas's brand access to and visibility within Bon Appétit's large and established customer base.

When Alibaba.com acquired Yahoo! Inc.'s China business, Debevoise represented Alibaba.com in the acquisition, which included licensing of proprietary Yahoo! technology and investment by Yahoo! in Alibaba.

We represented Warner Music Group in its investment in and licenses with Interlude Music, a joint venture technology company specializing in interactive music videos, to utilize its proprietary technology to jointly develop, create, produce and distribute innovative interactive music video content.

On behalf of our client Ambac, a provider of financial guarantees, we filed a UDRP proceeding and secured the transfer of a domain name from a cybersquatter that created a fraudulent website designed to obtain customers' financial information using Ambac's trademarks.

"I have never worked with better partners in my life. They are extremely responsive, extremely knowledgeable and able to see the big picture."

Design Patents

In today's ever-changing, global consumer marketplace, product designs have taken on an increasing importance. Debevoise's team, led by Megan Bannigan and Henry Lebowitz (a former USPTO patent examiner), aggressively protects clients' design patent rights with efficient, creative and pragmatic strategies. We are not the typical patent lawyers: our expertise in patent law is enhanced by our deep experience with trademarks, trade dress, copyright, and other IP protection, which can also be critical in design protection. This multidisciplinary approach, combined with Debevoise's renowned litigation skills, make us uniquely well-equipped to enforce and protect our clients' design rights, whether on the plaintiff or defense side.

Our team is also well-versed in fighting against invalid design patents. We do not hesitate to assist our clients in invalidating design patents that are unfairly asserted against them, including designs that are indefinite, functional or simply not novel.

When allegations of design patent infringement or other IP-related disputes arise, the Debevoise team takes immediate, effective action to protect our clients' interests. We tailor our strategies to meet our clients' overall objectives, protecting all of their important IP rights and enabling our clients to focus on the business and designs at hand. If litigation does become necessary, we stand ready to leverage our skill and experience, as well as that of our deep network of prior art investigators, industry experts and survey experts.

We represented Clayton, Dubilier & Rice in a case filed by bridal designer Jenny Yoo in which claimed both David's Bridal and CD&R, a former investor in David's Bridal, infringed her design patent and trade dress rights in a convertible bridesmaids gown. After a strong showing by defendants at the patent claim construction hearing, where Debevoise succeeded in severely limiting Jenny Yoo's design experts testimony, CD&R was voluntarily dismissed from the case and David's Bridal and Jenny Yoo settled.

STEVE MADDEN

We are representing Steve Madden in a case filed against Rothy's. After receiving a cease and desist from Rothy's, asserting that Steve Madden infringed its allegedly legitimate design patent rights and alleged trademark rights in a knitted, pointed-toe design for women's flats, Steve Madden filed this action seeking a declaration that Rothy's has no valid design patent or trade dress rights in the identified design and, even if it did, Steve Madden is not infringing those rights. We are also defending against counterclaims filed by Rothy's, alleging infringement of its intellectual property rights. Steve Madden has moved to dismiss Rothy's trade dress dilution counterclaim, as well as one of Rothy's design patent infringement counterclaims.

Megan Bannigan 'translates complex legal issues into clear pragmatic legal advice'.

Ongoing Representations

In March 2019, we filed a lawsuit on behalf of GSK, makers of ADVAIR, a prescription respiratory inhaler, against a Chinese pharmaceutical company, Respirant Pharmaceuticals, who intends to sell a generic version of ADVAIR using an inhaler device that improperly infringes on the distinctive color and shape of GSK's ADVAIR inhalers. The parties have agreed to a bench trial of all issues, which will likely occur in the second half of 2020.

We are co-counsel to Booking.com, N.V, in its case before the United States Supreme Court. After the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office refused to register Booking.com as a trademark on the ground that the name is generic, Booking.com sued. Citing survey evidence showing its name is understood by consumers to be a brand name, Booking.com persuaded the courts that its name is distinctive and is not a generic reference. The PTO obtained certiorari and is arguing that the survey evidence should be disregarded and that there should be a per se rule against registration of a domain name consisting of a generic term and a top level domain. We are working with Booking.com and its other counsel on the merits briefing and helped coordinate a dozen amicus briefs in support of Booking.com's position before the Court.

In what is one of the world's longest-running trademark disputes, Debevoise represents the owners of the internationally-famous rum brand, HAVANA CLUB, in a dispute pending for more than 20 years over ownership of the HAVANA CLUB trademark in the United States.

In a multijurisdictional dispute pending in six jurisdictions, we represent Merck KGaA, Darmstadt, Germany in a dispute against Merck & Co. involving the use of the name Merck.

We represent Costco Wholesale Corp. before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in its effort to overturn the lower court's summary judgment decision that it counterfeited and willfully infringed Tiffany & Company's TIFFANY trademark for diamond engagement rings, as well as the jury's award of treble and punitive damages. This is an important case as it relates to trademark counterfeiting claims because it will expand the limited scope of the Second Circuit precedent on what constitutes a "spurious" and "counterfeit" mark.

We are defending Bank of America in a challenge to its ownership and use of the trademark ERICA for its new virtual financial assistant brought by a former candidate for governor in Colorado who claims to own the trademark E.R.I.C.A. for an avatar. After successfully beating back a motion for a preliminary injunction, we won summary judgment cancelling plaintiffs' Georgia trademark registration and finding that plaintiffs owned no common law rights in ERICA. The case is now on appeal before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit.

We are representing WeWork in a proceeding before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board in which its primary WEWORK and WE trademarks have come under attack on the ground that the marks were allegedly assigned improperly. We have moved to strike those claims based on records filed with the Trademark Office showing the clear chain of ownership of the marks belonging to WeWork.

About Debevoise & Plimpton

Debevoise is a premier law firm with market-leading practices and a global perspective. Approximately 800 lawyers work in nine offices across three continents, within integrated global practices, serving clients around the world. Our clients include domestic and multinational enterprises in almost every industry. They look to us to bring a distinctively high degree of quality, intensity, and creativity to provide effective, pragmatic, and cost-efficient legal advice. Deep partner commitment, industry expertise, and a strategic approach enable us to bring clear commercial judgment to every matter.

Our presiding partner, Michael W. Blair, has said that, “Our culture is lodged deep into the DNA of Debevoise and something we’re making sure to keep hold of.” Some examples of how working with our community of engaging, intense, and creative lawyers would differ to others are set out below:

- We put our clients first: We place a high value on character and diverse interests and draw on the strength of our collaborative culture—across disciplines and regions—to deliver the best of our firm to every client. As a result, clients benefit from the dedication, cohesiveness, and superior quality that we bring to all of our work worldwide.
- We are committed to diversity and inclusion: We are recognized as one of the leading firms for diversity, and are proud to be a founding member of Catalyst CEO Champions for Change, a transformational diversity and inclusion initiative to recognize and celebrate leaders who support and drive diversity and inclusion within their organizations. We have also earned a reputation for the strength of our women lawyers and the development of several generations of women leaders at the firm. 38% of Debevoise lawyers promoted to partner since 2008 have been women.

- We advocate for serving others: Our U.S. attorneys performed an average of 114.5 hours of pro bono work in 2019 and we were ranked No. 1 overall in pro bono in The American Lawyer's "10-Year A-List."
  - We are leaders in the profession: During 2016 alone, Debevoise lawyers led the four preeminent bar associations in the world: the American Bar Association, the International Bar Association, the New York City Bar Association, and the International Council for Commercial Arbitration. In 2017, the immediate past SEC Chair and Director of Enforcement rejoined our litigation and white-collar team, which includes 13 former Assistant U.S. Attorneys or senior Department of Justice attorneys.
  - We are recognized market leaders: Nearly 90% of our partners are recognized by Chambers & Partners, The Legal 500, or IFLR. In fact, a higher percentage of our U.S. partners are recognized by the leading legal directory than any of our competitors.

In addition to the above, our cohesive and collaborative approach to serving our clients allows us to eliminate obstacles that many firms have to efficiently and effectively serve the client's needs. As one client said, "They are our trusted counsel for everything important." (Chambers USA).
